Technological changes are infused into the fabric of our daily lives. The process of learning and adapting seems to be never ending as we work to keep our industry strong and competitive. The IMDA is cognizant of the daily pressures you face to stay in compliance with newly introduced technology, regulatory provisions and an ever changing workforce.

This year's Annual Conference agenda reflects the expressed desires of industry personnel for us to present information which addresses the many facets you deal with to keep your company viable, leading, and innovating on your way to a successful year.

As is customary, we will have a Financial speaker, Arthur Stupay from Dix & Eaton who will provide an insightful state of the industry perspective. Rick Alaniz, Attorney at Law with Cruickshank, LLP, will set us straight when it comes to emerging legal trends. Completing our Wednesday morning session in exciting fashion will be our Motivational Speaker, Lisa Copeland, who will share her success stories on inspiring and leading others to be the best that they can be.

Following tradition, we will hold our Awards Luncheon on Wednesday to honor our Member of the Year, Decorators of the Year and Excellence in Quality award winners. We are pleased to announce that we are expanding our Breakout Session format to include a new segment on manufacturing. Our well attended Sponsor-Hosted Exhibition will round out the day Wednesday with hospitality which is second to none.

Thursday's agenda will begin with a key presentation on the State of the Food Industry by Todd Hale. We will follow up with a presentation by Can Manufacturer's Institute V.P. of Marketing and Communications, Sherrie Rosenblatt who will discuss the activities of CMI as they relate to promoting the metal package.
